DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-5, and 7-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wedeking (US Pat. No 5,419,613).

Regarding claims 1-5, and 7-10, the applicant is advised that claims have been given their broadest reasonable interpretation. In re Pearson, 81 USPQ 641 (CCPA 1974), Wedeking discloses a remote control stand for releasably holding at least one remote control (28, fig. 1) and facilitating directional control of signal transmissions from the remote control, said stand comprising: a base 24, means, extending from said base 22, for supporting at least one remote control 28, means 26 for releasably mounting at least one remote control to said support means for directing signal transmissions from the remote control toward electronic equipment to be controlled. The base is rotatable (chair can be rotated), a height adjustable stand for resting the base and adjusting height (col. 6, line 32), wherein said means for directing signal transmissions is adjustable (fig. 5), signal transmissions comprises: a least one optical wave guide having an optical input, optical output and at least one light reflective surface between said input and output, wherein said means for supporting comprises: a top plate releasably secured to a center rod, said center rod extending between said base and said top plate (fig. 3), wherein said means for releasably mounting at least one remote control comprises a hook-and-loop fastener (col. 9, lines 10-14), wherein said means for directing comprises: a remote control holding plate rotatably mounted to said supporting means, said plate being routable upward and downward (flexible rod 22 can be adjusted horizontally and vertically).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title; if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wedeking in view of McKenzie et al (US Pat. No 6,238,061).

Wedeking discloses the claimed invention as applied above in claim 1 except for the support having a lamp socket, and a bulb. However, McKenzie discloses a combination of lighting system including a night stand having a lamp socket 14 and a light bulb 15, and a remote control 30. It would have been obvious to an ordinary skill in the art to combine a lighting device to the stand of Wedeking in order to illuminate the stand in case of an emergency.
